Mrs. R. G. Adams Passes

A woman who won her way into the hearts of a great number of the early settlers of the Fabyan and surrounding districts by her works of humanity and mercy passed away at Wainwright Hospital on Sept. 2nd. Mrs. Rachel Guest Adams was a trained nurse when she arrived the bride of a year at Fabyan in 1920, and she used that training unstintingly when her services were required to minister to the sick in the community which then had scanty medical services. It was some five years later that the Wainwright Municipal Hospital was built and the many cases which had previously been treated at home or taken to the city hospitals were provided with modern facilities here.

Mrs. Adams was a native of Ireland, where she was born in 1879, and she would have reached the age of 70 years. She came to Canada in 1911 and trained as a nurse in the Royal Alexandra Hospital in Edmonton. She was one of the first graduating class of that school of nursing. She, after the outbreak of the first World War she joined the armed forces and went to England. On her return she married Hugh Adams in Edmonton in 1919 and the following year the couple moved to the Fabyan district where she resided until her death.

Mourning her loss is her loving husband, one daughter Joy (Mrs. R. King) of Fabyan, one sister, Mrs. Groer, of Vancouver and two brothers, J. Connolly of Edmonton and Harry Connolly of U.S.A.; one son Lloyd passed away in 1938.

Funeral services were held at the Irma United Church on Saturday, September 5th with Rev. Inglis officiating. Interment was made in the Irma cemetery.

Pallbearers were: Walter Adams, Bill Milton, Fred Bacon, Alton Lewis, Bill Crabbs and George Emter.

Floral tributes were from: The Family; Terry, Lena and Bob; Albert, Freda and family; The Greens and Inglis; Vancouver; Herman, Molly, Harvey and Terry; Kathleen, Clarence and family; Kay, Albert and family; Dr. and Mrs. Lowther Harold, Gladys and family; Reg. Mr. E. P. Tomlinson, respected long-time resident of this district was suddenly taken ill on September 5th and passed away in the Wainwright hospital on September 10th. Funeral services were held from the United Church last Monday.

Much sympathy is felt for Mrs. Tomlinson and family. Full obituary next week.

Little League News

We are planning a trip to Edmonton for all the boys who were members of the two Irma teams this year. Our present plans are to spend an hour or two at Al Oeming's game farm just east of the city and then take in the afternoon WFTU game at Clark Stadium. The date will be October 12, Thanksgiving Day. Time of departure will be announced later.

The amount of money in the Little League Fund is $119.00. As it will take at least that amount to finance the trip we are requesting the uniforms be turned in, washed and pressed, to save the cost of dry cleaning. They can be turned in to Clair Lukens or Dick McRoberts. Please try and have them in by the end of this month.

NORTH EAST CORNER

May we extend sympathy to the family of Mr. E. Tomlinson in their sorrow.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. Paul Nemyo is a patient in the Wainwright hospital. A speedy recovery is our wish.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Murray Walker and boys of Kinsella were visitors with the B. Walkers.

Last Friday evening the Avonlea Gospel Mission Young People held a party in honor of Betty, Billy and Winston Green who are going to P.B.I. at Three Hills this fall. Around forty gathered at the Younker home and a pleasant evening was enjoyed by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Johnston, Marsha and Tommy of Edmonton were weekend visitors with the Howard Oldhams.

On Tuesday a double birthday party was held at the Savard home for Sandra Lawson and Gordie Savard who are both 7 years old. Many more Happy Birthdays youngsters.

Colorful Ceremony Honor Guard Attends Moffat-Archibald Rite

An RCMP guard of honor attended a wedding in the Central United Church recently when Miss Colleen Rosemarie Archibald became the bride of Const. William Gordon Moffat, of the RCMP.

The all-white ensembles of the bride and her four sisters, who attended her, were an attractive contrast to the scarlet-trimmed uniforms of members of the groom's party. Bouquets of red, white and blue summer flowers decorated the church and guest pews were marked by scarlet-tipped white carnations on satin bows.

The bride, a 1958 graduate of the Misericordia Hospital school of nursing, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Almon Charles Archibald of Irma. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. William C. Moffat of Vancouver.

Rev. F. J. Wylie performed the afternoon ceremony, in which wedding rings were exchanged by the bride and groom. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a portrait gown of white silk organza. Chantilly lace outlining the Sabrina neckline and lily point sleeves of the Empire bodice. The bouffant skirt, poised over crinolines, was softly draped to a slight bustle effect, which continued to a chapel train.

The bride's double chapel veil of French illusion clouded from a coronet of seed pearls and sequins. She carried a bouquet of scarlet benita roses, ivy and stephanotis, centred with a white orchid and garlanded with streamers of rosebuds.

Only jewelry worn by the bride was a gold 21 jewelled watch, gift of the groom.

Attending the bride were her four sisters, Mrs. Lorne McLeod as matron of honor, Mrs. Edward Jackson, Mrs. Keith Firkus and Mrs. Walter Lawrin as bridesmaids. Noreen Jackson, niece of the bride, was flower girl, and Douglas McLeod, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

Senior attendants wore similar princess gowns of white Alençon lace, the Empire line of each accented by a taffeta bow, with streamers to the hemline. Bouffant skirts were poised over taffets and crinolines, and the bodices were designed with round-necklines.

Each wore a white picture hat and carried a cascade bouquet of scarlet feathered carnations and ivy.

Tells of Indian Experiences

Miss Lorraine Smallwood, in company with another young lady, has been teaching for the past four months among the Dog Rib Indians on an island in Great Slave Lake. Last Friday afternoon Lorraine gave a most interesting address to members of the W.M.S. and others who gathered in the United Church Parlor.

She told of the hostility which the white man has built up among the Indians by exploiting and cheating them. At first the young teachers had difficulty in winning respect and affection from their charges, but as time went on, they began to see that the girls really wanted to help them; so that Lorraine and Anne's work became increasingly pleasant and interesting.

The girls lived in a tent and taught school in another tent which leaked when it rained. Each morning they called school by beating an iron tray pan with a big spoon. It took half an hour each morning to get the children rounded up.

Lorraine told of how necessary it is that the Indians be educated to meet the demands of advancing civilization and deplored the fact that the majority of white men with whom they come in contact are not those who want to help them or will teach them; the better way of life.

MODERN PIONEERS

I get so mad when I read another of those accusations that Canadians have lost the pioneering spirit. According to our gloomy detractors, this generation is just a bunch of softies looking for an easy life.

I know, a lot of prairie women who could tell them a thing or two about pioneering. They are not old women, either, and they may not look at all like pioneers.

For instance, just recently I spent a delightful afternoon in Edmonton listening to some hilarious but hair-raising tales of the rigours of prairie school teaching.

The women present were all young, sophisticated and successful writers. Several had started their careers in some remote teacherage and obviously relished a lot of happy memories of their pioneering experiences.

Elsie Park Gowan, playwright, told this tale.

When she left college at seventeen, she was desperate for a job. Hearing of a teaching vacancy in the Peace River country, she wired that she was coming, scaped up the money for a one-way fare and got on a train for the north without knowing if she would be accepted.

In her own dramatic words: "After 23 hours on that train, I got off at a tiny station scared to death that my gamble hadn't worked. But, sure enough, there in the purple twilight was a man in a democrat coat to meet me."

Eugenie Myler, author, was also seventeen when she crouched alone and terrified in her first teacherage, while the local Indian heaves, in a burst of Saturday night frivolity, galloped their horses round and round the building whooping and howling.

"Of course, I quickly learned that they were only having fun and actually were more afraid of me than I of them," she told us. Indians often regarded the local school teacher as the representative of the law. The women told how they were expected to settle arguments, pass judgment on misdoers and even to heal the sick and kept us roaring with laughter swapping stories of their adventures.

There must be countless similar tales that can still be told by hundreds of prairie school teachers. Perhaps a really remote teacherage would be a good place to send all those people who deplore the passing of the Canadian pioneer spirit.

Meets big brown bear and hasn't got gun

Renfrew, Ont.—Willard Riopelle headed up in his truck in a hurry last week when he met a big brown bear with two cubs.

Mr. Riopelle was loading logs in the bush half way between Calabogie and Black Donald. He was on his way to a creek to get a drink when he spied the bear and cubs. The mother reared up on her hind legs and beat her chest with her paw, while the cubs made rapid progress to the nearest tree and climbed it.

The mother dropped on all fours and proceeded to approach Mr. Riopelle. He retreated in haste and climbed into the cab of his truck.

The big bear reared again and looked through the cab window. Mr. Riopelle looked back at it and in the meantime groped for an axe he had left in his cab. He made up his mind that he would let the bear have it if the animal poked her head through the window.

The bear beat its chest again with paws that had claws three inches long (Mr. Riopelle's estimate of the claw length).

Finally, after 15 minutes, the bear ambled away to see how the cubs were getting along up the tree and Mr. Riopelle started his truck and drove away.

He didn't think there were any brown bears in this area but the mother was brown and one of the cubs was brown. The other cub was black.

The mother was the biggest bear he had even seen including circus bears.

Local men say iron ore survey to be made soon

Nipawin, Sask.—Wilbur Anderson and Ed Schultz, two district farmers, believe that the claims they staked in the Fort a la Corne reserve, 23 miles west of here, may soon pay off.

Mr. Anderson told the Journal that drills will go to work on their claims for confirmation of the magnetometer readings which have been taken by Ronald Norman, of Flin Flin.

Mr. Anderson and Mr. Schultz staked their claims at about the same time as the Irex claims were staked by Milt McDougall, the Alberta prospector. They have now optioned these claims to Interprovincial Steel, operators of the new Regina Steel Mill, Prairie Pipe manufacturing, of Regina, and the Big Inch Pipe Company, of Calgary.

Mr. Anderson says the magnetometer surveys show that ore is there in quantity, and if the drilling confirms these readings, a shaft will be sunk and a mill built. Ore will most likely be mined at the rate of 250,000 tons per year, Mr. Anderson believes.

The Anderson-Schultz claims lie right alongside the claims now owned by the Irex syndicate which last winter embarked on an expensive drilling program to prove up its findings. The Irex drilling program is estimated to have cost in the neighborhood of $250,000.

Other members of the Anderson and Schultz group include Frank Hastings, William Botting, and Fritz Ostberg, of Nipawin, and Carl Erickson, of Toronto.

The anomaly, the centre of which alone indicates a body of 100 million tons, lies only about four and a half miles from the Irex properties which have created so much interest in this district during the past four years.

Mr. Anderson says that Interprovincial Steel may spend as high as $15,000,000 in developing the property and processing the ore.

He quotes Mr. Sharpe, head of Interprovincial Steel, as saying: "The magnetometer surveys are very encouraging. Our consulting geologist, A. S. Dawson, reported that the tests show a huge deposit of magnetite ore, the centre area of which alone indicates a body of 100 million tons, lies only about four and a half miles from the Irex properties which have created so much interest in this district during the past four years."

Within two years after sinking starts, it is expected the mine would be supplying sponge iron for the Regina mill. A smaller second shaft for safety purposes would follow in two to three years.

The pipe companies can absorb a large amount, not including the other needs of the province for rolled steel. At present the Interprovincial Steel company has located its scrap iron needs for the next two years for the rolling mill. The product of the Fort a la Corne deposit such as has been outlined would be of equal value to the company in relation to scrap iron, and it is believed that the Interprovincial mill could handle some of which contains more than 100 million tons. He feels that the surrounding areas contain much more.

"He recommended that we drill on the property to confirm the showings. We negotiated with drilling companies and expect drilling to start soon. We will drill one hole at an approximate cost of $35,000 and decide from there whether it is necessary to explore further."

"We will very definitely sink a mine shaft into the ore body if the drilling proves the indications. We hope to start sinking the shaft within six months."

Mr. Anderson says the mine and mill would employ about 200 persons full time at the mine site. In addition about one-half the $15,000,000 expenditure would be made in Regina where two electric furnaces would be employed to convert the reduced iron into steel ingots.

The entire development has been planned in advance. The primary shaft would probably be circular with a 20 ft. diameter and will be sunk by freezing methods similar to those employed in Saskatchewan at the potash developments.

At last they've done it—a mechanical hen

Grand Forks, N.C.—"Fardon me while I lay another egg."

That's the favorite phrase of the mechanical talking hen who is making her Canadian debut at the Pacific National Exhibition this year.

She's really only half a hen, a cross-section about six feet tall made by the U.S. Agricultural Department. Spectators will be able to watch the entire process from when she eats kernel corn until an egg is made.

Not at all bashful about the working of her innards, she explains the process while it is going on.

She will stand guard over the chick nursery in the poultry show. She was first displayed at the World's Poultry Congress in Mexico, and comes to the PNE from Switzerland and a European tour.

Inadequate diets caused by apathy

Apathy is cited as being one of the major causes of inadequate diets by the American Medical Association, according to the Health League of Canada.

While sufficient food supplies are available, surveys continue to show that a substantial number of individuals fail to consume diets which meet the recommended dietary allowances.

A great variety of food supplies are available, and an adequate diet can be obtained by selecting foods from each of the four basic food groups. These include:

—The milk group which includes cheese and ice cream. They recommend that children have three to four cups of milk daily; teenagers four or more cups; adults two or more, and expectant mothers, four or more cups.

—The meat group including two or more servings of beef, veal, pork, lamb, poultry, fish or eggs. Dried beans, peas and nuts may be used as alternates.

—The vegetable-fruit group from which four or more daily servings should be selected. These servings should include a dark green or deep yellow vegetable at least every other day, citrus fruit or other fruits containing vitamin C, and vegetables including potatoes.

—The bread-cereals group from which four or more daily servings are suggested. This group includes whole grain, enriched or restored cereal, and bread.

A good diet can be rounded out by more of the same foods or others, such as table fats, cereal products, and sugar, to provide the additional calories and nutrients needed.

Lacombe Pigs:

Again this fall there is going to be a chance to get either a group of these sows and a boar or a boar of the Lacombe breed. Applications have to be in by September 30th. Application forms and full information are available from the Lacombe Experimental Farm, Lacombe, Alberta.

Warble Control:

Not too long ago warble control was thought of as a spring operation. With advent of synthetic insecticides such as Trodene and Co-Ral it is now possible to do the treating in the fall and prevent all damage to the animals. Hroline is administered as a bolus and results have been variable. Co-Ral is administered as a spray and results have been very good for both warble control and louse control. The initial cost of Co-Ral may seem high, but the benefit to the cattle is great enough that it is very profitable to the cattleman. Co-Ral should be used between September 15th and December 15th (the earlier the better). Follow directions closely for best results.

If you have any questions to ask, please contact me.

Changes in Seed Dealers Act:

The Seed Dealers Act has now been amended so that seed salesmen as well as seed buyers must be licensed. This action was taken because of the number of itinerant salesmen who have been covering the country and selling undesirable kinds and varieties of seeds to farmers for very low prices.

Before buying seed from, or selling seed to any salesman, you should ask to see his licence and make careful note of his name, address, licence number and the name of the company he represents. If he has no licence, just don't deal with him.
